

5 Reasons for CyberEdge

Our world becomes more digitized and interconnected each and every day. With that, cyber must be considered a peril, one that may cause loss in both the physical and non-physical worlds.

In fact, organizations today can face property damage and physical harm as a result of an attack. In addition to our nearly two decades of experience helping clients manage cyber exposures, AIG's CyberEdge end-to-end risk management solution helps clients stay ahead of the curve of cyber risk. CyberEdge offers the unique coverage, tools, and services to safeguard against data breaches, computer hacking, property damage, and more.

Here are five reasons why CyberEdge is critical for your business. One, cyber is no longer a product. It's a peril that affects a multitude of coverage lines. In our interconnected world, a cyber attack may cause property damage, loss of life, broad business interruption, or harm to customers. CyberEdge Plus provides an affirmative grant of primary coverage for a broad range of cyber risks.

Two, CyberEdge helps to prevent an attack in the first place by helping organizations develop risk management programs underpinned by AIG's Cyber Insurance Protection. It provides access to the unique risk mitigation and engineering expertise provided by AIG and our partners.

Three, claims are handled by experienced adjusters in property, casualty, and financial lines. Once an incident occurs, we'll help with first-party recovery and restoration costs and business interruption loss, third-party loss and regulatory costs, extortion, online media exposure, emergency 24/7 assistance, legal liability for bodily injury and property damage.

More than 20 million people and 22,000 companies have trusted us to help respond to some of the world's largest cyber incidents and data breaches.

Four, clients have the ability to purchase the coverage and services by selecting only the coverages of interest. AIG has been providing standalone cyber insurance for nearly two decades. CyberEdge's modular concept allows clients to choose the coverage that best fits their needs.

Five, CyberEdge is backed by AIG's world-leading multinational expertise. Confronted with expanding regulatory regimes and increasingly interconnected economies, global businesses consistently turned to AIG's renowned product range and geographical reach to meet their insurance needs. We have local market expertise and on-the-ground resources that span an expansive network of over 200 countries and jurisdictions. AIG has handled cyber claims for more than 22,000 companies over the last 20 years.

Should an insured face an incident, they can rest assured knowing that our claims specialists are experienced in handling the most first-party and third-party cyber claims, have the authority to promptly make decisions, and rapidly assist them in their time of need.

CyberEdge is designed for businesses of all shapes and sizes. Explore the rest of this app to learn more about what CyberEdge has to offer.