

AIG CyberEdge[®] Risk Consulting Services

Executive Threat Brief

What current cyber risks is your business and industry facing?

AIG's Executive Threat Brief workshop is designed to help your organization better understand current security threats specific to your industry. AIG consultants will review current threats, available threat feeds, and methods attackers are using – based on research and actual cyber claims – to help you understand how to better defend your business.

AIG handles approximately four cyber claims on average per day. This experience, combined with information collected from tens of thousands of underwriting cases and our cyber consultants' 20+ years of experience, gives us a unique and highly informed point of view to the threat landscape our clients face and defend themselves against.

Workshop Preparation

Together with your AIG consultant, you'll discuss:

- Desired goals for the briefing
- Participants, date, time, and location
- Any concerns on current cyber threats to include in the workshop

Workshop Details

A two–three hour presentation and discussion that will include:

- Current cyber risks or threats related to your industry
- How cyber criminals are exploiting those threats
- How to better protect your organization

Workshop Delivery

The workshop is:

- Delivered onsite at client location on agreed to date and time
- Intended for C-level executives and any desired staff to attend
